Scientific Editor

AlphaBioCom is an expanding, stimulating, and passionate leader in medical writing and medical communications. Due to our expanding roster of pharmaceutical and biotech clients, we are seeking scientific staff to join our quality control department as part of our outstanding, energetic team.

We offer the unique opportunity to work on some of the most inspiring and interesting pharmaceutical products and technologies within the medical field as a part of an organization that will provide you the support, resources, and flexibility you need to succeed.

As a Scientific Editor, you will be responsible for fact-checking scientific manuscripts, abstracts, slide presentations, and posters, constructing figures, and assisting with literature searches. This is an entry-level position in a growing, thriving company with significant scope for advancement.

QUALIFICATIONS INCLUDE:

- MS, PhD or PharmD
- Ability to independently comprehend and analyze scientific content and edit scientific manuscripts, abstracts, posters, and medical training materials
- Excellent verbal communication skills
- Outstanding organizational skills, ability to prioritize assignments and meet deadlines
- Understanding of the AMA writing style and GPPII and ICMJE guidelines
- Team player with a detail-oriented work ethic

About AlphaBioCom: We are a dynamic and people-focused company located in King of Prussia, PA, 30 minutes outside of Philadelphia. We offer an attractive salary, bonus program, telecommute options, and comprehensive benefit package. We recognize that the well-being of our team is paramount to our continued success and therefore we offer flexibility in our work environment and actively encourage a healthy work–life balance.
